war in advance. It has not been sprung upon them suddenly.

"The President with great wisdom has fought against it and is still fighting against it.

Opponents of War Prepared

"There are men in both houses of Congress who realize the nature of the forces that are trying to bring war upon the country.

"All of those that oppose war are prepared for it if it must come and will show in the prosecution of it an energy even greater than that with which they have opposed war and its dreadful consequences.

"The people have had time to think over the war. They have had to study and understand the forces, the interests, the selfishness, the professional war movement.

"Having had time to think in their homes, and in the Congress that represents them, the people are thoroughly determined upon one thing. They do not intend that war which will plunge the nation into debt, disorganize the lives of citizens, interfere with this nation's possibilities of usefulness hereafter—they don't intend that that condition, damaging to ninety-nine per cent of all the people shall enrich a selfish few. The people of the United States have seen extortion practiced upon the people of Europe, condemned to pay to the ammunition makers of the United States any price demanded.

Sees Edderal Antocracy

Sees Federal Autocracy

"They have seen the makers of powder and dynamite, the manufacturers of killing machinery of all kinds, piling up their hundreds of millions of profit.

"What has been with other nations is the business of other nations.

"But what is done in case war comes to this country will be the business of this country.

"When the time comes for the United States to ask for war materials or for the manufacture of engines of murder, our government will not ask the manufacturer, the producer or the banking middleman how much are you going to charge your government, how much profit do you mean to get out of this war.

"The government will say and it will mean, I know, what you have for sale, I know or I shall find out what it costs you to produce. I shall take what I need, I will run your factory myself, operate your mine or your plant myself, if it seems to me advisable, and I will allow you on the actual cost such a profit as seems to me advisable.

"The company which proudly tells its stockholders that it is producing copper for six cents a pound and sells it for thirty-six cents a pound will not sell it to the United States government for thirty-six cents a pound—but for six cents a pound plus a fair profit. The steel company that tells its stockholders how it has earned dividends of a hundred per cent on a thousand millions of watered stock will not get a hundred per cent profit from the government of the United States—but will get what the products costs, plus the average, reasonable per cent of profit.

"And what is more, the government prosecuting the war in the interest of the people and not of prrivate individuals, will act toward inanimate property as justly and impartially as it acts toward the living citizen.

"I Will Take Your Son

"I Will Take Your Son

"The Government that says on the one hand to the mother, I will take your son and send him to be killed. will hesitate to say to the maker of steel ammunition or copper, will take your property, and use it as I see fit, and pay you as I think wise and just—and not as you decide.

dent, if wer should come have said the same thing, and here is the substance of it:

"The United States will not pay extravagant prices for war supplies. We have been making up tables of figures based on years past, we have had statements prepared as to the average prices during past years of steel, oil, copper, powder, etc., and if we get into this war and begin buying with American money we'll pay the average price for years past not the extortionate war prices that unfortunate Europe has had to pay.

"We have not been studying Europe and its methods in vain. We observe that England has commandeered raw material, and has paid what those raw material, cost plus a small reasonable profit.

"We shall not pay for raw products like steel, copper, coal and oil, two, three, seven, hundred and thousand per cent profit.

"We shall pay a fair profit, no more. The Government will not ask what will you charge? The Government will you charge? The Government will say you have so and so and we know it. We want it and this is what we will pay you for it.'

"They will find in the President a careworn, over-burdened, but determined man. He does not intend to have the gabling hopes of any industrial king force upon this nation, of which he is the head. The industrial "Patriot" who through newspapers control or ownership of congessmen see's to foce the President's hand, will find that hand a heavy and a tight hand when it comes to paying a tight hand when it comes to paying out the money of the people.

Agree with Francis Zimmaramn note all probability absolute fake and forgery, prepared by a very unscrupulous Attorney General's very unscrupulous department. Everybody knows that the secret police are the most commod enceless manufacturers of forged evidence in the world. The ordinary police are bad enough with their trumped up evidence and railroading methods but the federal agents with the Government back of them and moreor less immune from punishment are the most reckless concoctors of evidence and framers of jobs in the world.

Gregory's whole career in affice as Francis showed in recent editorial has been as a spy fangier and plot conceiver. He has not been bound by morals, facts or the Constitution. "A He has employed the secret service to enforce England's unelawful orders. He has attempted to put a bill through Congress to make any criticism of his acts or of the President's acts or of any political move or measure treasonable and punishable as such.

He is possibly man violently pro-British. He, is surely violently pro-corporation. He is loosted where he can do the corporations the most good and he has been unwilling to be removed or they have been unwilling to have him removed even for a position ben the Supreme Surent benefit. He and ... Burleson are House's appeintments and House has been a corporation lobbyist all his life.

Gregory and Burleson are so crooked that, as Alfred Henry Lewis used to say, one of them could lie in bed on top of the Woolworth Building and the other on the ground floor and look down and up forty-seven flights of winding stairs into each other's eyes and understand each other perfectly.

The object of the Zimmermann forgery was to frighten Congress into giving the President the powers that he demanded and perhaps also into passing the espionage bill. When Wilson wanted to give away the rights of the United States in the Panama Canal he pretended that he had private information of a dangerous international situation sufficient to justify his acts. He has never revealed his privateling of matter and no one now believes that he ever had any.

He could not repeat this false claim on this co-casion so a complaisant Cabinet officer this time undertook to manufacture sufficient false evidence to enable Wilson to have his way. It is possible that the British secret service ce-operated in those plans. The only serious consequence is that the whole people of this country, ninety per cent of whom do not want war, may be projected into war because of these may representations and these forged documents, if they are forged.

I believe in war if thereople want war. They have to do the fighting. They ought to do the deciding. I be-lieve in first a referendum to the people and second, failing that, a decision by the people's representatives in Congress assembled.

We are getting very far away from democracy and very close to autocracy when we repose all the power of the people and all the power of the people's representatives, in the hands of one man whom we thereby create a dictator.

It may be the right thing to do but Rome in so doing drifted from a republic into an empire.

I think the United States should remain a republic in fact as well as in name and that the people should neither be deceived by the machinations of mandata the people should neither be deceived by the machinations of mandata to decide a question of war or any other momentous question. I do not believe that any otherindividual has an interest in such questions equal to the interest of the great mass of the public and I do not believe that the wisdom of any individual is equal to the collective wisdom of the people.

If we do not want to say all this editorially, we can say part of it editorially, and get someone to stand for interview as Hale used to do to bring all these points out, especially those shout the probable-forgery of the note. We should develop the forgery phase of the note for the Sunday paper if Francis and I seem to be right.

the makers of ammunition and sellers of raw materials of war shall not stand by and be the gainers while all others lose.

"The people through their government will see to it that everything is done fairly and justly, fair prices as far as possible for those that enlist and offer their lives, moderate pay with a fair moderate profit for those whose inanimate wealth in the shape of war materials and manufactured ammunition may be necessary for carrying on the war. The nation will take and operate ammunition plants if war comes, and fix tion plants if war comes, and fix their own price and moderate profit for all war materials purchased. "(Brisbane) Journal."

Will your heirs conserve what you leave them?

TWO young men were each left a large amount of money by a relative whose estate we settled, and without using even a dollar of the principal, they immediately made trust agreements with us, under which we hold the principal and pay them the income. The result is that the principal is intact.

In contrast is the action of a young man and woman, who were each given $150,000 under their father's will. Within two years the son had entirely dissipated his share. Since he had not been educated to support himself, he is now dependent on relatives and is exceedingly unhappy. Much of his sister's money has also melted away and the remainder is being used and controlled by her husband.
